P.S. has returned from Paris and sent you his best wishes. He is going to do a feature story to the effect that Khrushchev killed the summit because the warmth and smile of President Eisenhower would have so charmed the Soviet people that Khrushchev did not want the visit made. He said that Jim Hagerty told him that the Russian embassy here had stopped issuing visas on the Wednesday before the presidential group left for Paris, and that this was an indication that the trip to Moscow by our President would be called off.
